Money
Part 4

Welcome to another episode of the Ultimate Freedom Teachings video series.

Robert Scheinfeld here, and welcome to this fourth video in The Brutally Honest Truth About Prosperity and Abundance series. By the way, if you found your way to this video, which is number four, and you haven't watched the other ones, my strong recommendation to you is stop watching this one right now, go back and watch the first three, and then come back to this.

Because they are designed to build on each other, and it's very important that you get all of it. You won't get as much benefit out of this video if you haven't done that.

As a quick recap, in the first video we talked about the need for clarity, and the lack of clarity with most people, including me a long time ago, and what prosperity and abundance even mean.

In the second video, we talked about how much do you need? And I pushed on a little bit some of the lies, illusions and stories, as I call them, about how much you really need in order to be happy, to be fulfilled, to live the kind of life and lifestyle that you really want.

In the third video, we talked about, "Well, okay. Why don't you have the amount of prosperity and abundance that you really want now? What's standing in the way?"

And in this fourth video, I want to push on something else. I'm very fond, you may already know, of pushing on myths and what I call lies, illusions and stories. And so in this video I want to push on how do you know that your vision, as it relates to prosperity and abundance, about what you want, what you think would really float your boat, what you think would really make you happy and fulfilled and let you lead the kind of life that you really want deep down.

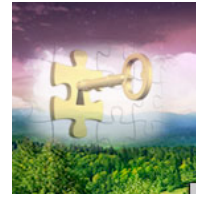

How do you know your vision on that is clear? There's so many, as I mentioned in the previous videos, workshops, and audios, and videos, and courses, and experiences where they tell you to write down your goals, and write down your intentions, and create all these things, and they all assume that what you think would be best for you, what you think you want, what you think would really make you happy and fulfilled and lead the kind of lifestyle you really want is accurate.

And I'm here to tell you that while it could be, or parts of it could be, the odds are so far against the fact that your vision is clear. And it's almost something like this: imagine for a moment—we're going to come at this from a different angle in a few minutes, but imagine that I was a magic genie and I said, "I will grant you one wish."

And you said, "Okay, here's what I want." And in the wish that you'd make, it would be about something related to what you think you want with prosperity and abundance, you know? There'd be some number. There'd be some definition of what it is that you want as it relates to prosperity and abundance.

And let's say the magic genie said, "Whoa, whoa. If that's what you want, I'll give it to you, but let me tell you something. If I give you that, exactly what you just asked for, you're not going to be happy and you're not going to be fulfilled, and there's going to be an emptiness to it, either right away or after a short period of time after you get a whoop-tee-do, wow because you've got this thing that you wanted for so long."

"But I'll give it to you. Or what I'll do is I'll give you something different, but it will make you—you'll really have a happy life. You'll really feel fulfilled. You'll have the real dream life that would really float your boat and work for you versus this illusory," what I call 'I illusion' "story life that you think you'll get if I give you what your wish was."

Which would you take? If the genie said, "I'll give you what you ask for, but you won't be happy." Or the genie said, "I'll give you something else as it relates to prosperity and abundance, but you really will be happy. You'll have an awesome life all the way around. Great quality of life, whatever you want to call it."

Awesome, or what I used to call ultimate lifestyle. Which would you pick? Would you insist on the goal that you want, what you think you want, what you're so sure would be the best thing for you right now? Would you take that or would you take when the genie said, "I'll give you something different but you'll really have a happy, joyous, fulfilled," whatever you want to call it, the words don't matter, "life?"

Which would you take? Now I suppose there's some people watching this video that would choose the first one. They'd say, "No, I really want to have this thing that I would ask for. I really want to have this prosperity and abundance thing that I want." But this is the kind of scenario that happens all the time.

The vast majority of people, and there are exceptions. There are exceptions to everything. The vast majority of people, their vision is so distorted by lies, illusions and stories. If you're aware of my Busting Lose Phase 2 – Total Prosperity and Abundance teachings or the Ultimate Freedom teachings, you know that I call this cloud cover.

The sun is what you really want. The sun is Truth, with a capitol T, and then there's a layer of cloud cover that blocks you from being able to experience it or see it clearly, or see clearly. And so, so many people are so distorted in their vision by this cloud cover, by lies, illusions and stories, and they come from everywhere - growing up, the media, somebody else, a teacher, a mentor, a coach, whatever, that all contribute to our distorted vision.

So my question to you is very similar to what I just posed with the genie. What is it that you really want? Most of us get so hypnotized by what we think we want, which again, is so heavily distorted by distortion, by lies, illusions and stories, cloud cover, distortion. We're so hypnotized by that. We're so mesmerized by that, that we can't see beyond it.

And we just know, it's like if you've ever seen the pictures of those horses that have the blinders on the sides so that they can only see straight ahead and they're blinded to what's on the side of them. So many of us for so many reasons, including me for the vast majority of my life, are so blinded and distorted, and hypnotized, and mesmerized by the things that we think we want, that we don't end up getting what we really want, which is what would really make us happy.

So the next piece of the puzzle is, in order to experience what I call true prosperity and abundance, which yes, includes money and stuff, and things, and career dynamics, in order to experience true prosperity and abundance, which means getting what you really want, what would really make you happy, what would really fulfill you, what would really float your boat, what would really give you an enjoyable, awesome lifestyle, whatever you want.

Not just the achievement of a goal that would lead to a dead end or emptiness, or dissatisfaction ultimately. Then you've got to get really clear on who are you really, deep down, beneath layers and layers and layers of distortion and lies, illusions and stories. Who are you really? What do you really want? What would make you happy?

Not the kind of stuff in general, although there are exceptions. I'm not talking about the kind of stuff that you'd put on a list at a financial prosperity workshop or seminar, listening to an audio thing, or a course, or a coach, where someone will ask you to pull from the distortion, as I call it, of your conscious mind, what you think you want.

I'm not talking about that. I'm talking about getting way beneath all of that, dissolving layers of lies, illusions and stories and clearly being able to see who am I really? What do I really want? What would really make me happy? What would really give me the lifestyle of my dreams? Not just fulfill certain goals that I think I want.

There's a big difference. I've said this for years. There's a huge difference, and I didn't see this when I was younger. There's a huge difference between what you think you want, let's say from the limited, distorted perspective of your conscious mind, if you will, and what you really want.

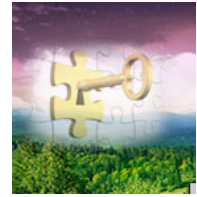

Which is, to go back to the last video, what aligns with your mission and purpose, what aligns with who you really are deep down, hidden under layers and layers and layers of nonsense and distortion and stuff that isn't who you really are. You've got to get clear on that. You've got to get clear on who you really are and what you really want.

So I took you through some steps in the first two videos. You know, what does prosperity and abundance really mean? How much do you really need? I just wanted to start to pull out some of the stuff that lies, illusions and stories and distortions that are floating around in your conscious mind, let's call it.

And then in the third video, we started to go beneath that into mission and purpose, and that there are limits. There are restrictions on what you're going to create as it relates to money and career and prosperity and abundance, based on what your true mission and purpose and why you're really here is.

And now, we're going beneath that even deeper into what I call Truth, with a capitol T, which is getting clear on who the hell are you really? What do you really want? And I've got to tell you, when I look back on my life, at the time of this recording, in 2016, I'm 58. I'll be 59 in a couple of months, so I'm closer to 59 than 58, so let's say I'm 59.

Money
Part 4

A lot of people will be watching this when I'm 59. For the vast majority of my life, from high school all the way through late 40s maybe, early 50s, what I thought I wanted, what I thought would make me happy was so wrong, was so distorted, was so filled with lies, illusions and stories. And the thing is, I got a lot of it.

And you see this all over the place in the media. There's a very famous quote that I share at the live events and workshops that I do, by Jim Carrey. And it goes—the actor—and it goes something like this, "I really wish that everybody will get everything they want and what they dreamed for, so that they'll realize that that's not what really matters. That's not really what it's all about."

And what he's saying, which is what so many other people say who have achieved many, many, many or all of the goals that they'd set for themselves, is that that's not what works. That's not what makes you happy. That doesn't lead to a happy life. There's a famous self-help teacher, whose name you'd be very familiar with if I mentioned it, who used to say, "Okay. Money can't make you happy, but at least it can let you arrive at your problems in style."

And everybody would laugh, you know? Like it was this big joke. But you know I'm here to tell you, I'm not interested in arriving at my problems in style. I'm interested in eradicating the problems, and I'm interested in being happy, and I'm interested in leading a fulfilled life.

And if I were to go back and look at all the things that I wrote down at workshops and seminars, and using my own self-help systems that I developed in the early days of my career, when I was trying to find the magic formula to be able to get everything I want, if I were to go back, I didn't get everything that I put on those lists by a long shot.

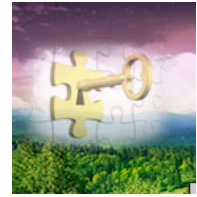

But I got a lot of the stuff that I thought I wanted and it did not make me happy. It did not help me be fulfilled. It did not address the demons that were deep inside of me that were dragging my quality of life down, and making me angry and frustrated, and insecure and feeling like a victim, and all these issues.

My quality of life was terrible even though I had achieved all these goals. And I wasn't clear on what I really wanted, and certainly I couldn't ask for the help to get it. I wasn't setting it as a goal. I had no idea. I was so distorted by lies, illusions and stories. So here, in this video, just to repeat it one more time, this is the next puzzle piece.

You can go after whatever goal. And again, there's example after example after example after example from people that have had little successes in their life, achieving their goals, middle-size successes, and then the big, famous people that you see in the media, rich famous people that have achieved all these goals and all lived all these things that they thought were their dreams when they were younger, and you see them wanting to commit suicide.

Committing suicide, having issues, with drugs, having issues with drinking, not being happy, not being able to make relationships work, having health and body issues that are persistent, and not being happy campers, not having truly happy and fulfilled lives even though we all imagine that they would.

Robert Scheinfeld

Part 4

We see that everywhere. And what happens for most people, it happened to me and maybe happens with you is that what happens in your mind, whether you're conscious or not about it is, "Okay. They got what they wanted and they're not happy. They got what they wanted and they've got problems. But it would be different for me. If I got what I wanted, I really would be happy."

And that could happen. It certainly—again, there's exceptions to everything. But if you look at what's going on out there and you look at the things you've tried prior to finding your way here, it just isn't the truth for the vast majority of people, the vast majority of the time.

So the key is finding a way somehow to cut through the layers of lies, illusions and stories, to cut through the myths, to cut through the bullshit, to cut through the distortion, to cut through all these things that cover who you really are, what you really want, and what would really make you happy so that finally there's the clarity.

"Okay. This is what I really want, not what I think I want. This is what I really want." And then to watch, so to speak, experience your whole life moving into alignment with who you really are deep down, what you really want deep down, which is for most of us, including me for most of my life, so buried, so hidden.

Or if it comes up, somehow it gets knocked back down again because of some story that we run in our mind about why we can't go there and we need to go here, the big other goals that we think would make us happy. So huge difference between what you think you want, what you really want. In most cases, such a lack of clarity even if people are absolutely certain they're clear.

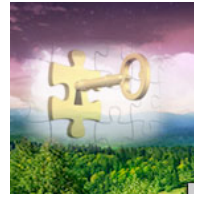

In general, and I have experience now with tens of thousands of people all over the world. It is a rare exception that somebody truly has clarity about who they really are and what they really want. So that's the piece I'm pushing on here. That's the other puzzle piece I'm giving you here. This is the drops in your pond that I hope will ripple out and make a difference in your life, make a difference in your story.

And in the final video in the series, I'll bring all of this together and show you the practical path to doing what I just said, and other things that I hinted at in the videos that led up to this one.

So as always, I invite your comments below this video. Love it. Hate it. Really made you think. Opened your eyes. I'm an idiot. Whatever it is. You got it wrong, Robert. I just want what I want. Screw what you just said. Whatever it is, I invite your comments wherever you're looking at this.

If you found this was valuable, please share it with others that you care about, and share the whole series. Just don't send them to this video, but send them to the first one and recommend that they go through the whole series wherever you're looking at this.

And I'll see you in the next video in this series, where we'll bring all of this together, take it into a practical place as I promised, and I'll show you what happened with me that allowed me to get clear on who I really am and watch, literally, as my whole life came into alignment with who I really am and what it's like, and what happened, and what made it possible for me to be getting what I really want and having everything align with who I really am at a very deep down level, and how extraordinary and delicious that journey is.

So I'll see you soon, when we do the next video in the series. Thanks for watching. Bye-bye for now.
